AN ACT

Supplementary to an act entitled an act. making temporary provision against the introduction of contagious or malignant diseases and their generation by foreign causes.

Be it enacted, by the Common Council of Alexandria, in Common Council assembled. That after proclamation shall at any time have been made by the Mayor, in pursuance of the act to which this is a supplement, it shall be lawful for the Superintendant of Quarantine, by and with the consent and instructions of the Mayor in writing, to cause all, or any vessel or vessels whatsoever, from any port or place whatsoever, whether specified or not in such proclamation, and bound to the port of Alexandria, to be brought to anchor at the quarantine ground opposite Jones's Point, to be there subjected, together with all persons found on board, to the like inspection, and to the same rules, regulations, examination and enquiry, as are by law authorised or required in the case of vessels brought to anchor at the said quarantine ground, by virtue of the act to which this is a supplement; and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the said Superintendant that any such vessel is from any port or place whatsoever, whether mentioned in such proclamation or otherwise, where any malignant fever prevailed at the time of her departure, or that at any time during the voyage, any such malignant fever has prevailed on board, in either case every such vessel, and every person on board shall be detained at the said quarantine ground, and shall be proceeded with by the said Superintendant, in like manner, and under the like rules, regulations, and limitations as are by law proscribed and authorised in the case of vessels brought to anchor at the said quarantine ground, by virtue of the act to which this is a supplement.

SECT. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person whatsoever shall, without the express permission of the Superintendant go on board such vessel, after she shall be brought to anchor as directed by this act, (or by the act to which this is a supplement) and before such vessel shall be authorised to proceed to her port of discharge; and every person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum of one hundred dollars to be recovered by action of debt, in the name of the Common Council of Alexandria, in any court of record for the use of the said Common Council to be applied to the defraying the expences of the quarantine regulations; nor shall the master or commander of any such vessel, after being brought to anchor as aforesaid, and before being authorised to proceed to the port of discharge as aforesaid, suffer or permit any person whatsoever, other than the officers attached to the quarantine establishment, either to leave or to come on board such vessel, without the express permission of the said Superintendant, and every master or commander so offending, shall forfeit & pay for every such offence the sum of one hundred dollars, to be recovered in like manner, and to the same use as above directed.

SECT. 3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no boat or other fishing vessel, shall be brought to anchor during quarantine regulations for any purpose whatsoever within three hundred yards of any vessel performing quarantine —Nor shall any person in such boat or fishing vessel, without the permission of the said Superintendant, stop near, or lay off any vessel performing quarantine, so as to have any communication whatever with any person on board—Nor shall the master or commander of any vessel, after being brought to anchor at the quarantine ground permit any person belonging to the vessel of which he is master or commander, to anchor any boat belonging to the said vessel, at a greater distance than 200 and 50 yards from the quarantine ground when such vessel is at anchor. Every person herein offending, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay ten dollars, to be recovered before any justice of the peace for the county of Alexandria, for the same use as before directed.

Passed in Common Council the 7th day of Sept. 1805.

PRINTING, in its various branches, executed with neatness and dispatch.

From the CHARLESTON COURIER.

CORREGIDOR's 4th LETTER.

To Messrs. DALLAS and his fellow addressers of Philadelphia.

"It is an undertaking of some degree of delicacy to examine into public disorders. If a man touches the true grievance, there is a danger that he may come near to persons of weight and consequence, who will rather be exasperated at the discovery of their errors than thankful for the occasion of correcting them. If he should be obliged to blame the favorites of the people, he will be considered as the tool of power; if he censures those in power, he will be looked on as an instrument of faction. But in all exertions of duty, something is to be hazarded."—BURKE.

MEASURES, not men; principles, not parties; the attainment of public good by practical polity, not metaphysical notions and impracticable theories, are the objects to which the labors of every efficient member of society, and the pen of every honest writer, should be directed. It is for that reason I (though earnestly wishing you a complete victory over your present adversaries) cannot, in justice to the nation, withhold from you that reprehension which your past political conduct deserves, and the public good imperiously demands. And I am the more earnest in this purpose; because I think that if the people of America are not determined against conviction, they must, by the display I give of the conduct of your party, (their favorites) be convinced that they ought ever hereafter to be a little more cautious whom they trust; and a little more distrustful of their own judgment in the selection of their friends; that they ought not in concerns of so much importance as their civil rights, to take the opinion of every noisy, plausible demagogue who flatters them; nor above all to confide in mighty promises; and to make no account of persons but as those persons can shew legitimate titles to their confidence, not by professions of love and assurances of prospective fidelity; but by past services, and long-tried approved integrity. Your conduct will go a great way to shew them the expediency of this, if their eyes be not obstinately closed, and their ears locked up against instruction; since the spirit and every letter of all the principles, all the practices, and all the promises and professions by which you crept into popular favor, are now disclaimed, nay most vehemently and justly condemned by yourselves; since, on your own shewing, the people were wrong in confiding in you at that time; and since the rule of conduct which you and your party undeviatingly once pursued, is now letter for letter reprobated by yourselves. Permit, me, therefore, in addition to what I have stated in my former letters, to recommend to your notice the following instances.

You complain of the jacobins having "passed sentence of corruption upon a majority of the present congress." Is this, in your opinion, wrong? If so, how is it that it was not wrong in your opinion in 1795? What of 1795? you will ask. Gentlemen, can you have forgotten, that in 1795, you, as members of a revolutionary committee, resolved "that a majority of the senate had been bribed to vote for the British treaty?" I must rub up your memories a little. Yes—you did utter that most foul libel upon the senate, and the executive of that day; and for what purpose? Why, for the most abominable, factious purpose—to render the administration of that time unpopular, by representing as corrupt and hostile to the interests of America, a treaty of theirs, which your chief (the leaders of the malcontents, and abusers of that treaty) now thinks fit to be renewed and continued.

You complain of "scurrility and defamation being cast upon the veterans of the revolution, and republicans of the day of trial." Truly have you said in this, and just and furious ought the general indignation to be, against such atrocious and ungrateful wrongs. How often has every federal print in the union repeated, over and over again, that very same complaint? I am afraid, however, that you and the federal prints differ in the objects of your indignation; for you, gentlemen—you and your party, are the very persons accused by them; while the jacobins of this day are the persons accused by you. And is your memory really so short? or do you only want, as the smuggler when examined by the commissioners of the customs, said, to give the truth the go-by? Pray, what party—what set of men—or rather, was it not your party, and yourselves, to whom those prints belonged, or for whose defence and support they did business—which charged general Washington with being a murderer!—which accused the venerable, the incorreptible, the pure governor Jay, of having received a bribe—which asserted that general Pinckney was an enemy to our form of government, tho' he had devoted himself, and given his labors to establish and defend it; and which pronounced Mr. Adams to be a dotard and a hoary incendiary? Pray, gentlemen, recollect yourselves, and assuming, for once in your life, a little candor, answer me; for (as Shylock says) "You knew: you knew: none so well: none so well as you." Who was it that did hire, and did pay, and did well reward Callender of whom you speak so unkindly—Who was it, I repeat, that hired him to calumniate, more foully and falsely than ever man was before calumniated, general Washington, general Hamilton, and other "Veterans of the revolution, and republicans of the day of trial?" Finally, answer, who trampled upon your predecessor's services and merits, and rose to power by doing so? Was it not yourselves and your party?

You complain of persons being deprived of office for having asserted, and made use of their free rights of election. Give a jog to your memories, and bid them tell you what were the motives of your chieftain, Mr. Jefferson, for putting out of office a host of federalists, of high talents, spotless fame, eminent public services, and names without the shadow of reproach. If it should happen that it was because they did not, and would not vote for him, you have driven a few nails in the coffin of his character, in vain attempts to save your own. If you are sincere in your reprobation of depriving persons of office for asserting and using the freedom of election, how comes it that you are now advocates for Governor M'Kean, and recommend him to re-election, when you know—I say you do know—that he, the said Gov. M'Kean, did turn Mr. Campbell, Mr. Footman, and others, out of office, simply because they had not voted for him. In truth, Mr. Dallas! You, in particular, have a hard card to play on this occasion, between your private interest and your new fangled public integrity. It is a little hard upon you to be obliged to sign a paper condemning displacement and proscription while you are luxuriating in the comforts and conveniences of a place, out of which Mr Jefferson turned Mr. John Wiles Kittera, to accommodate you, and reward your zeal in the cause of free election.

When you say, "To the elevation of bad men the prostration of good men has ever been found a necessary prelude," it would be well to inform the public, at the same time, what you think of the men to whose elevation the prostration of Washington, and those who fought by his side in the revolutionary war, was deemed necessary and attempted. Had you any hand in that attempt? And, if you had, was it upon the principle just cited from your address you did so, knowing Washington and his brother heroes and patriots to be good? Or have you drawn that inference from your knowledge of the kind of persons to accomplish whose elevation it was thought necessary to prostrate that great man—the father of his country.

"The worst views of faction (you say) are pursued under professions of the best." Though there is nothing very new in this observation, and the papers opposed to your party have reiterated it a thousand times, I notice it because I am glad to add such superior authority as yours must be on that subject, to that of others. When you were an actor in it, you knew but one half of it; and, with your accustomed modesty, remained silent. But now that you are likely to be a sufferer by it, you know all, and you speak out what you know.

Your complaint of "the tyrany of printers," is natural enough. It is equally natural that you should have overlooked that tyranny so long as you were not the object of it, since, in the sufferings of others, philosophers like you are seldom wanting in a laudable patience. It is a little unfortunate for you however, that when that tyranny was exercised with a degree of rigor diabolically unrelenting, upon your predecessors you were not content with remaining its passive minions; but stepped forward into "the bloody arena," its active abettors, champions, and defenders. But, perhaps the Lethean draught of prosperity and power which you have had at your lips for upwards of four years, may have dismissed from your mind the remembrance of your conduct on the passing, and afterwards on the procuring the repeal of the sedition law; a law enacted to prohibit that very tyranny, but which you then opposed reviled, and ran down, with the malicious appellations of "a gag law" and "a muzzler of the press." What would you give for gag-law, now, Gentlemen?

I should but mis-spend my time and weary out the patience of the printer and editor, as well as that of their readers, if I were to detail and enlarge upon the inconsistencies which I see between your former practice and your present preaching; in every word of which latter you are cutting the throats of your own party; attacking the doctrine of the endless perfectability of man as impious and visionary, without any feeling for your friends Paine, Jefferson, Godwin and Co. advocating the independence of the judges, while fresh from the destruction of the judiciary; and eulogizing the common law, in defiance of Giles, Mason and all the other beli-weathers of your flock, who declaimed against it in congress, and attempted to deride Mr. Byard by calling him the champion of the common law. Some further observations however, remain to be made, which I will give to you in a future letter. This I cannot conclude without hinting to those, if any there be, who assign much weight to your authority & opinions, to recollect that on the subjects you have agitated, & in which you have acted your judgment stands self-impeached, self-condemned & your authority is of no value, since you have, like able lawyers, as you are, spoken on both sides, and said as much on one as on the other: and to recommend it to yourselves to call in the aid of conscience and integrity, as arbiters between your past practices and your present precepts which are so openly at war with each other, to decide which is right, then to lay their decision before the public, and bind yourselves down by some irrefragible bond to adhere to it for life; for fear, that on a future day blinded by prosperity, and beguiled by your natural tendencies and habits, you should again fall into those evil ways, which now in the day of trial, you have either the grace or the cunning to condemn.

CORREGIDOR.

NEW-YORK, September 7.

Captain Fairchild, of the ship Aurora, from Havanna informs us that three days previous to his sailing from that place the American consul, Henry Hill, esq. had shut his office and declined doing any business in consequence of some dispute between the Consul and that govegnment. It was reported and generally believed that unless he had a favorable answer from government, respecting some depredations upon American commerce, by some privateers or rather pirates, that he would not open his office again. Several masters of vessels, who have been taken, plundered, and their vessels sent into Batabano, and other places in that island, have applied to the consul for redress.

NORFOLK, September 6.

Arrived last evening, schooner Eagle, captain Gross, forty eight days from Bordeaux. Captain G. passed through the combined fleets of thirty sail in the Bay of Biscay steering for Brest.

Schooner Ruby, Clark, 5 days from N. York.

In Hampton Roads, brig John, Woelper, 25 days from Nantz. Was boarded off the Western Islands by 5 French privateers, one of them, from the number of killed & wounded on board, must have been roughly handled by an enemy. Capt W. says there were nineteen killed lying on the deck!

PARAGRAPHIST---No. IV.

Predestination seems to prepare and direct the result of all experiments upon popular forms of government. Their very nature tends to change, and every change effected by popular clamor and prejudice is for the worse. The facility with which amendments, as they are termed, can be introduced, sets every mad projector at work, and the people, gratified with every thing that has novelty to recommend it, are willing to lend their aid to his projects, thinking that the power which they exercise in leaving the plain path of rectitude will remain, and, if necessary, bring them back to the beaten track, after they have amused themselves in deviations from it in every direction. Let them know, it is very difficult if not impossible, to retrace their wandering steps. Each departure from established forms, deprives the people of a portion of their self-command, for every change operates as an apology and a precedent for the succeeding one. In the rapid succession of innovation, the people will be left, without any fixed determinations, and without any regulated notions of liberty, an easy prey to some ambitious demagogue, more fortunate than his brethren, and they may stare and wonder and weep over their new habiliments, but their chains will be so thoroughly rivetted, they will not be able to disengage themselves. It is not pretended that any system of government can at first be matured into perfect wisdom, but it will be found that the first institutions of a free people are the best. The danger that surrounds them awakens them to unanimity and they seek for that intelligence and patriotism in the outset which they are afterwards led to suspect and discard. Democracy has no eye for the light of experience no ear for the warnings of foresight, and no thought for the prevention of coming evil, but marches on blindfolded to the precipice over which it is hurried to destruction.

From the N. Y. Com. Advertiser.

THE ground apple of Ireland is proverbially dear to Irishmen. If however the people of that country discover a peculiar partiality for this valuable esculent it is rather, we imagine, because the soil is peculiary suitable for it, and that it grows there to the greatest perfection, than from any traditional or national regard for it, as has been some times alledged. In truth wherever this wholesome and neutritive root has been cultivated to any purpose it has been esteemed; and we believe the inhabitants of Britain and America scarcely place a less value on it than those of Ireland. In the following Stanzas, from an Irish paper the writer has done ample justice to his subject, at once evincing that he is no contemptible poet, and no indifferent friend to potatoes.

ODE ON POTATOES.

Where lies sterling taste in eating?
In the costly French ragout?
I say, No, but in potatoes;
What, my gentle friend, say you?

Sordid epicures may glory
In the joys that feasts afford;
May contentment and potatoes
Ever spread my humble board.

Pure by these crimson current
Gushes from the guiltless heart;
Grosser food inflames the passions,
Vice and fell disease impart.

When by cruel Euris blighted,
Drooping Ceres leaves the plain,
What, if they potatoes wanted,
Would the helpless poor sustain?

View the pair who own that cottage,
In potatoes lie their wealth;
These support their num'rous off-spring,
Little blooming sons of health.

Blest as Eastern prince, the peasant,
Who can hord the silver meal,
And the beautious glosy kidnies,
Some for food and some for sale.

See the happy hind returning,
Cheerful from his daily toil,
When his blissful cot he enters,
Sally meets him with a smile.

Here he sits in peaceful corner,
Whilst the flaming faggots blaze,
And a dish of hot potatoes
All his past fatigue repays.

Rising on the cleanly porcelian
Pleas'd his rare repast he sees;
Whilst his little smiling pratlers
Croud around his envied knees.

Softly rests his peaceful ashes
Who first brought potatoes o'er,
Richest treasure of the Indies,
To Hibernia's genial shore.

Now around the fertile fallows,
They unfold their dusky green,
And to tempt the farmer's trident,
Are their op'ning blossom seen.

Round each humble habitation
Flats of these adorn our roads;
Pledges of returning plenty
To the little blest abodes.

Envied he by all his neighbours
Who the earliest can produce;
Such a present to my lady,
Often is of golden use.

Pods of these produce a pickle,
Choice as nature can bestow;
Not the boasted bean or gherkin
Can a brighter verdure show.

O thou honest Irish sirloin!
How I chuckle when I see,
Social on the table smoking,
Hot potatoes stand by thee!

Here, ye nauseous frog destroyers,
Here the feasts of health behold;
Feed on these ye wiser Irish,
If ye covet to be old.

Happiest produce are potatoes,
Of Hibernia's happy Isle;
The support of toiling millions,
And the glory of her soil.

These refin'd to snowy whiteness,
With Munditia's bosom vie,
Please at once her nicest palate,
And delight the wand'ring eye.

These, in bread, in pie, or pudding,
Scollop'd, roasted, boil'd excel;
All their uses, all their value,
Not the Muse herself can tell.

Never may those virtuous Irish,
Who their King and country serve,
Never may they want potatoes
Who these noble roots deserve.

ANCIENTS SUPERIOR TO THE MODERNS.

From Huddesford's Wiccamical Chaplet.

There liv'd—'tho' that is somewhat wide
O' the purpose—I should say, there died
A squire, and Wyschard was his name;
Picrith and Saxon ancestry
Thustrated his pedigree,
And many a noble imp of fame:
Yet these renowned ancestors,
As if they had been vulgar sons of whores—
Were long, long since, by all the world forgot,
Save by himself: he knew the very spot
Where they had each been coffin'd up to rot;
And in his will directions gave exact
Amongst those venerable dads to have his carcase pack'd,

Now deep the sexton burrows to explore
The sepulchre that these old worthies hid;
Something at last that seem'd an huge barn door,
But was no other than a coffin lid,
Oppos'd his efforts; long it spread and wide,
And near the upper end a crevice he espied.
Thence on his ear strange uncouth utterance broke.
As of some sullen slumb'rer half awoke,
Who, yawning, mutter'd inarticulate
And angry sounds: yet could not this abate
The courage of the clown: "Speak out—
"quoth he—
"Raw head and bloody bones ne'er yet affrighted me."

A thund'ring voice replies, "What miscreant knave
"Dares break the Sabbath of old Wyschard's grave?
"No miscreant knave, worm-eaten Sir, am I.
"But Hodge the sexton; knave! I scorn the word:
"I at my honest calling work, for why?
"Your kinsman's just brought down to be inter'd."

"My kinsman to be buried here?—Oh, ho!
"What year of our Lord is't, fellow let me know."
"Tis eighteen hundred, sir, and two.
"Ay, Goodman Sexton, say you so?
"Then time on me a march hath stole;
"'Twas near sev'n hundred years ago
"That I became the tenant of this hole;
"Men like myself behind I left but few;
"Since then the world, I wot, is fangled all anew!
"Tell me, in sooth, are other folks like thee?
"For by thy voice, thou seem'st a tiny elf,"
"Tiny! "quoth Hodge; "Zooks, I am six feet three!
"There's no man in the hundred but myself
"Can say as much—thy name-sake that is dead,
"I'll warrant him, was shorter by the head."

"Thy words lack proof; I prithee, honest friend,
"Thrust through this chink thy little finger's end;
"Whence I may know if thou the truth dost state,
"And judge, by sample small, of thy dimensions great."

Thought Hodge—"Altho' I little fear the dead,
"Foolhardy mortals perils strange environ;"
His finger then withheld he, but instead
Thrust in his pick-axe nozzle, sheath'd with iron.
And he was'n the right,
For at a single bite,
Old Wyschard snapt it off clean as a whistle.
"Hence, lying varlet, bear
"Your pigmy corps elsewhere,
"'Twould Wyschard's grave disgrace!
"In the stoutest of your race,
"There's no more substance than a BIT OF GRISTLE."

IN COMMON COUNCIL,
9th September, 1805.

The Committee appointed to revise and examine the account against Charles Alexander, for his taxes due the Corporation of Alexandria, for the years 1802, 3, 4, and 5. report, that the sum of 228 dollars 17-100 is justly due from him: whereupon it is ordered, that the said account be delivered to the collector for collection; and in case of non payment, that he be hereby directed to levy a distress for the same, and that the Council will save him harmless for so doing.

The Council having received information of a contagious disease now existing in Philadelphia, it is Resolved, That the Board of Health be requested immediately to cause the laws for preventing contagious diseases from being introduced into this town, to be executed; and that the Mayor and Health Officer, do cause the said law to be executed either by means of the Board of Health (or otherwise as to them may seem most expedient) and that the Mayor do ascertain and communicate, what members of the present Board of Health refuse to act.

FOR SALE,

IN PRINCE-WILLIAM COUNTY,

Neabſco Furnace, and its Appendages, with 4 or 5000 acres of Land adjoining,

NEAR the town of Dumfries, and within four miles of the Potomac. The ſoil is generally adapted to the produce of ſmall grain—and, if too conſiderable for one purchaſer, will be laid off in lots ſuitable for ſmall farms. A deſcription of the land is thought unneceſſary, as thoſe wiſhing to purchaſe will, no doubt, firſt view it. The payments required will be one-third cash, and the balance in two annual inſtalments, to be ſecured by a mortgage on the land, and no deed will be made until the laſt payment is complied with. Any perſon wiſhing to purchaſe, may know the terms by applying to Mr. Thomas F. Page, living near the premiſes; who is fully authoriſed by me, to ſell the whole or any part.

Water-Street ACADEMY.

THE ſubſcriber returns his moſt ſincere thanks to the patrons of his ſchool, for the very liberal and friendly encouragement, he has met with ſince he came to Alexandria: and moſt reſpectfully informs them, and the citizens in general, that, as he has retaken the houſe in which he now reſides, they may conſider his Academy as a permanent ſchool eſtabliſhment; ſo that thoſe who prefer him as a teacher may, very probably, have it in their power to ſend their children to him until they have finiſhed their education: that is, if ſuch parents or guardians conceive, that having obtained a knowledge of the following branches of literature (which are taught in the moſt careful mannner by the ſubſcriber) is a ſufficient education for their children, viz. the Engliſh language, critically grammatical, agreeably to the celebrated Walker's ſtandard of pronunciation, Writing, and Arithmetic in all its branches, Menſuration of Superficies and Solids, according to Hutton and Bonnycaſtle, Gauging Veſſels of the following figures, in the moſt exact manner, by cubical arithmetic, namely, Hexagonal, Cubic, Spheroidical, and Caſks of all kinds and ſizes.—Alſo, Book-keeping, Geography, with the uſe of the Globes, and Elocution.

As the great and many advantages which reſult from having children begin and finiſh their education with one teacher, are ſo evident that every well informed perſon muſt, upon the leaſt reflection diſcover them, the ſubſcriber conceives it unneceſſary to ſay any thing in vindication of the ſubject; but refers it to the good ſenſe and judgment of his friends and fellow citizens to determine, whether it is not better to fix their children in one ſchool, and continue them there, (provided that ſchool is well regulated) than to change their teachers frequently, as ſome do, in the courſe of their education; which practice is moſt undoubtedly fraught with many evils to ſuch children. As the ſubſcriber can teach but a very ſmall part of the children in Alexandria, the above remarks cannot juſtly be conſtrued to be the effects of avarice: But he would juſt obſerve, both for his own ſake, and the ſake of his fellow-laborers in the didactic profeſſion, that on teacher, be he ever ſo competent to his taſk, will receive much credit from the enlightened part of the community, even by his utmoſt, exertions to inſtruct ſuch children as are moved about from ſchool to ſchool, either to ſatisfy their caprice, or upon any occaſion whatever, that is not of very conſiderable importance.

Thoſe who are deſirous of having their children taught by a perſon ſcrupulouſly ſtrict in the diſcharge of his duty, as it reſpects the manners, morals and progreſs of his pupils in their learning, are invited to viſit the ſubſcriber's Academy, and judge for themſelves of his manner of conducting a ſchool and method of teaching. As an Aſſiſtant is now engaged for a conſiderable time, between twenty and thirty ſcholars can be taken, in addition to the number now in the ſchool.

An Evening School

Will be opened by the Subſcriber, on MONDAY the 2d of September next, at the low rate of Three Dollars per ſcholar per quarter, ink, quills, and wood included; and will teach till the firſt of March, provided encouragement offers.

☞ EDUCATION.

The ſubſcriber returns his ſincere thanks to his Friends and Employers, for their patronage and paſt favors; and reſpectfully begs leave to inform them and the inhabitants of Alexandria, that he will commence an Evening School on Monday the 16th of September. Thoſe who are diſpoſed to favor him with their ſcholars, are deſired to make ſpeedy application, as he will take but a ſmall number. Particular attention will be paid to the Engliſh Grammar, Surveying theorical and practical part, if requeſted—Navigation, the uſe of the Globes, or any of the different branches of the Mathematics.

Rich Kanahwa Bottom Lands, for Sale or Exchange.

THE ſubſcriber offers for ſale, or exchange, for lands or other real property on the eaſt ſide of the Blue-Ridge, about 7000 acres of RICH BOTTOM LAND, on the Great Kanahwa River, and on both ſides thereof oppoſite and below the mouth of Poketollico Creek, in the ſtate of Virginia, 25 miles from Point-Pleaſant, [the county town of Maſon county] and 12 miles from the county town of Kanahwa county, and adjoining the lands of the late General Waſhington. They were ſurveyed at the ſame time with thoſe lands in the year 1772, and are held under the ſame titles, viz. Old Military Rights—which are unqueſtionable.

The Lands are of the very firſt quality, the Bottoms in many places a mile wide, they have been lately reſurveyed and divided into lots containing from 150 to 350 acres each, for the accommodation of purchaſers, each lot fronting on the river, and extending back from thence to the hills, which afford a moſt extenſive range for ſtock, which can never be interrupted. One hundred acres therefore of this rich bottom, with its advantages would make a good ſettlement. The great [Virginia] ſtate road leading to the ſtates of Ohio and Kentucky, paſſes by and through theſe lands, which being on a fine navigable river will command a ready and high price for the produce to the emigrants to the weſtern country both by land and water. Their ſituation, beſides, gives their occupants choice of the eaſtern or weſtern markets, as produce may be found moſt profitable. The climate is mild and remarkably favorable to the production of fruit. Salt-works are erected on the banks of the river but a few miles above theſe lands, and the neighborhood furniſhes abundance of iron, coal, limeſtone, mills and mill-ſeats; ſo that there is no part of the weſtern country which holds out more advantages to perſons deſirous of emigrating.

A more particular deſcription of theſe lands, with plots of the ſeveral lots, their ſituation, deſcription and price, may be had by application in Alexandria, to Mr. WILLIAM CRAIK, who attended the ſurveying of them, or to the ſubſcriber.

FOR SALE.

Five hundred acres of LAND, in the County of Alexandria, and five and a half miles from Alexandria and two from Georgetown, one moiety in Wood and part of that heavily timbered. It abounds in excellent water, and hath an extenſive view of the neighborhood—from its proximity to the City, Georgetown and Alexandria, with the additional convenience of an abundance of wood, few farms within the Diſtrict claim a pre-eminence. Upon the Firſt Monday in October, I ſhall attend on the premiſes for the purpoſe of diſpoſing of it, if not ſold previous to that time. Should it be more accommodating to thoſe (who wiſh a country reſidence during the ſickly months,) I will divide it into ten and twenty acre LOTS. Any perſon wiſhing to view the Land, by an application to WILLIAM SNELLUM, who lives on it may be gratified.—My remoteneſs and the frequent depredations on the Wood and Timber, are the principal inducements to ſell it, not more than one-fifth of the purchaſe money will be required, and a credit from two to three years will be given for the reſidue, ſecurity by a mortgage, and a forfeiture of the advanced monies, with intereſt on the ſum unpaid, if not punctually and fully diſcharged.

LAND TO RENT.

The ſubſcriber offers to RENT, for one or more years,

A VERY valuable FARM, containing about 800 acres; at preſent occupied by Mr. Daniel Dye. It lies on Bull-Run, in the county of Prince-William, near to Centreville, about 20 miles to Dumfries, 25 to Alexandria, and about the ſame diſtance to Waſhington City and George-Town. The land is of the firſt quality, if not ſuperior to any, on that run, well adapted to the growth of every kind of grain, it is divided into three fields of about 200 acres each—thoſe fields, when in paſtures, produce white clover in the greateſt abundance, and grow with luxuriant and equal to any paſtures below the Blue-Ridge—a large quantity of meadow ground of the beſt quality binding on the run which might be prepared with very little labor, and a ſufficient quantity of wood-land, for keeping in repair the neceſſary fencing, the buildings, except a barn, are indifferent; yet the centrical ſituation of this farm (in a healthy part of the country) to thoſe capital towns, the fertility of its ſoil, the great advantages that may be derived from ſuch a farm, render it an object worth the attention of any induſtrious farmer.

The premiſes will be ſhewn by Spencer Ball, Eſquire, near thereto, or the tenants thereon, and the terms made known by applying to

Robert Mitchell.

TO BE RENTED,

For one or more years, and poſſeſſion given the firſt of January next, with the privilege of ſeeding wheat this fall;

Between 8 and 900 acres of valuable LAND, lying on Cub and Bull-Runs, in Fairfax county, about 23 miles from Alexandria and the City of Waſhington, and well adapted to the growth of corn, wheat and tobacco. There is a comfortable dwelling-houſe, kitchen, ſtable, two large barns, corn-houſe, &c. with tolerable good apple and peach-orchards—a great proportion of the above land is low grounds, which at a ſmall expence might be made prime meadow land. Mr. Spencer Ball, or Joſhua Buckley, who live adjoining the land, will ſhew it, and the terms made known by the ſubſcriber.

John G. Chinn.

FARMERS—Attend!

The ſubſcriber offers for SALE, the FARM on which he now lives, in the county of Frederick, ſtate of Virginia, on the main road leading from Staunton to Alexandria, near the White Poſt:

IT contains 600 acres, about 350 of which are cleared and well enclоſed, and laid off into convenient fields; the remainder of the tract is in timber. For elegance and healthineſs of ſituation, this tract is equalled by few in the county. The ſoil is good and there are on the premiſes ſeveral never-failing ſprings, and a conſiderable young orchard compoſed of different kinds of fruit, and many well grown fruit trees now bearing, and a large proportion thereof well laid down in clover, for which it is particularly adapted. A further deſcription is deemed unneceſſary, as the purchaſer will doubtleſs firſt view the premiſes. As the ſubſcriber is deſirous to ſell, a good bargain may be expected.

Joſhua Swayne.

Frederick County, (Virginia) 8th month, 24th. law3w

N. B. A large proportion of the payment will be taken in ſuitable lands in this ſtate, or ſtate of Ohio.

FOR SALE,

My Tract of Land, lying in the county of Loudoun, and bounding on the Sugar Land Run: containing two thouſand and ſeven hundred and ſixty four acres. I will accommodate purchaſers in parcels leſs than the whole. I will not enter into any deſcription of the land, ſuppoſing that perſons deſirous of purchaſing, will inform themſelves on the ſpot, by taking a view of the premiſes. Poſſeſſion can be given on new year's day, in the year 1806, to any one who makes a bargain before the 15th September, after which time tenants will be fixed and the poſſeſſion though at the ſame time as in the other caſe, will be encumbered with them. For terms application may be made to Thomas L. Lee, of the county, General John Minor, Frederickſburg, and the ſubſcriber living in the county of King George. LANDON CARTER.
